G1 Camera Bag

Choosing the bag

My father's camera bag finally cave up and broke. I decided to buy new one, I visited Anttila and Gigantti but I didn't find any good camera bags. Then I went local photo store (Kallioniemi) and they had Lowepr camera bags. I looked the Nova 2 first but it was too small. Then I looked Nova 3 and it felt just like right size for my equipment. I checked the Nova 4 also but it was too big, I could have fitted all my gear and my fathers SLR + 2 lenses easily. Bag cost me 350FIM (60 EUR/$55) I might have got it cheaper if I have ordered it from somewhere but I needed it immediately.

The equipment that I want to keep in my bag:

- | Canon G1 (with LensMate adaptor + UV-filter)
 - | Another CF-card
 - | Remote control
 - | USB-cable
 - | AC-adaptor
 - | AV-cable with Scart
- | 2 Flashes
 - | Metz
 - | Nissin
 - | Slave cell
 - | Hotshoe-to-PC-adaptor
 - | PC-cables
- | Iomega Klik! + 5 disks
- | Small bubble tube
- | 49->58mm adaptor ring
- | 49mm Polarizer
- | ND-filter(s)*
- | Wide angle lens*
- | Lens cleaning kit

(I don't have equipment marked with * yet)

Pros

- | Enough space for all my equipment (inner dimensions 23cm x 15cm x 19cm)
- | Equipment is protected by "Shock-absorbent closed cell foam"
- | Versatility; all dividers are adjustable
- | Two ways to carry the back; from the handle on the lid or shoulder strap
- | Can be attached to belt/backpacks front belt
- | Lots of pockets, all have zippers
- | Outer material is Water-resistant and zippers are protected from water too

Cons

- | Bag is quite heavy when all equipment is in it (for example I can leave flashes home when you go to photograph landscapes in daytime)
- | Shape of the bag is more bulky than the old one, can't fit the bag to backpack with clothes for 3 days. The old one was a lot smaller, but I could only put G1, Iomega Klik!, 1 flash to the bag and it was full.
